Subject: Certified Letter requesting signature

Dear Mr. Nolte,

I received your certified mail on Tuesday requesting my signature for the declaration regarding the patent application for the Low Cost Fuel Pump and Filter Assembly. There is unfinished business to tend to before I sign and return that declaration. Electrolux Home Products (EHP) purchased an EFR-DEV fuel injection development "computer" from your client PC/RC in December of 2000. Due to some required software revisions that were needed, the EFR-DEV unit was returned to PC/RC before the end of 2001, to have software revisions made at PC/RC's office. The unit was to be returned to EHP - though it never was. It was used in the development of the throttle-body fuel injection for Tecumseh and has not been returned. Though Jim Bellistri has admitted that it was to be returned to EHP, it has not been.

You will receive my signature, OVERNIGHT AIR, ONLY after the EFR-DEV has been returned to EHP, to the attention of Mr. Ronnie Goldman, Chief Engineer of Lawn & Garden products, and Mr. Goldman has e-mailed me that it has been returned and is in working order.

Sincerely,

Seth Harbuck
